ROCKEFELLER JR. MAKES ADDRESS

Spoke on the "Every Christian Man at Work Movement, Before Y. M. C. A. Convention.

(Correspondence of Associated Press)

Cleveland, Ohio, May 15.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., addressed today's session of the International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America, urging a campaign to be called "The Every-Christian-Man-at-Work Movement."

Multitudes of men whose names appear on the church roles as Christians are merely marking time, said Mr. Rockefeller, like soldiers parading the streets in dress uniform instead of rendering active service like the men in soiled and disheveled khaki. "Christian manhood, like muscular or mental power, is only to be maintained by its use," he said. "I call upon the ministers of this land to rouse to action that vast horde of Christian men enrolled in the churches but seldom seen in the pews, who are only waiting for some service which requires manly qualities in order to be again brought into active relation with the churches. The day for the preaching of a gospel looking toward the preparation of the individual for a passage to the skies on flowery beds of ease has passed, and may it never return.

"The inactive army of Christian men will be drawn into service the more quickly when they have come to recognize the brotherhood of man as a necessary corollary to the fatherhood of God. An interesting and unique argument recently advanced for compulsory service in this country is that the sons of the well-to-do families of our communities might thereby be thrown into close contact with the sons of the working people, so that the great gap which too often exists might be bridged and as a result of daily association in common tasks these two classes of men brought to see that the difference between them is superficial rather than inherent.

"As we face the great industrial problems which are arising daily, it seems clear that the only hope of their permanent and satisfactory solution lies in the widespread acceptance of the doctrine of the brotherhood of man. When men of widely separated stations are thrown together, come to know each other, to admire the strong and manly qualities which they see in each other, when they are working side by side for the advancement of a common interest, then and only does personal distrust, hatred and misunderstanding give way to a spirit of fair play, justice and a desire for the common good."

Mr. Rockefeller paid tribute to the success of the Young Men's Christian Association in having "done more throughout the civilized world than any other single force in helping to bring about co-operation between Christian men of different denominations." It was to be profoundly regretted, he continued, "that Christian men should spend a moment of time, an ounce of strength, a cent of money in contending among themselves in regard to their individual interpretation of scriptural meanings, instead of uniting together under the common standard of the cross to oppose with a solid front the hosts of darkness."

In launching the proposed campaign to put every Christian man to work, Mr. Rockefeller proposed the appointment of a special secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. to have charge of the undertaking, and he outlined some of the general requirements of the organization. "It is hard," he said, "to conceive of any single effort which would go further toward revitalizing the churches of North America and reviving the interest of men in them."

MOVIE NOTES.

"Playing With Fire" is the next big feature in which the wonderful Mme. Petrova is starred.

Selig scored a hit when they produced "The Fifth Man" and "The Hard Way," with Jack Pickford.

Magazines say that Knickerbocker star features are the best on the market.

Ask your picture show manager to get the next Bushman-Bayne feature. It's the best yet, "A Million a Minute."

Metro makes another big scoop and takes on Harold Lockwood and May Allison.

Mary Page seems to be the rage the world over. Is she guilty? Is the question that movie fans are asking.
